CARRIER BACK BUT OUT AGAIN

Bond Jumper Returns. But is Released Second Time on $200 Bond.

Ray Carrier, who jumped his bond at the moment when needed by the state, in the "Tony" Barrett gambling case recently in the city court, was again released upon bond Saturday night when he furnished $200 for his appearance next Thursday morning.

The last time Carrier jumped his bond and was brought back a fugitive from justice he was released by Asst. Chief of Police William Cassidy, City Judge Gilmer's instant demand that Carrier be brought into court revealed the fact that Carrier had been released without the consent of the city judge or Deputy Pres. Samuel P. Schwartz. Saturday morning Carrier was found in the Flatiron saloon on Lincoln way E. by Officer Jack Northrup. Carrier told the officer that he had been informed over the telephone Friday night by Cassidy that he was wanted in the city court. When Northrup brought the defendant to the city police station, the latter informed the officer that he would "just wait around" for Cassidy in the captain's office, as the assistant chief wanted to see him.

Chief Kline says that Carrier never did want to evade the police. He simply had business elsewhere and did not know that he was doing anything wrong by not appearing for trial. Carrier told Deputy Pres. Schwartz Saturday morning in the presence of others that on the night the police raided "Tony" Barrett's saloon the men there were playing "penny ante" at cards. He seemed to want to indicate to the deputy prosecutor that that is an innocent game. During the conversation with the deputy prosecutor, however, he said that the penny ante report was the "dope" he heard after the raid had taken place.

Carrier was arraigned by Judge Gilmer and he pleaded not guilty to the charge of frequenting a gambling house. His bond was placed at $200 for his appearance Thursday morning in city court.

Carrier was placed under $50 bonds at the time the raid on Barrett's saloon was made for his appearance when the case was called for trial. The bond was signed by Barrett. Carrier did not appear. Several days ago he was picked up by the police, and was released at the orders of Asst. Chief Cassidy. Friday morning Carrier's case was called for trial. He was not present. The judge learned of the usurpation of his authority by Asst. Chief Cassidy and he sent for him. Cassidy was not to be found, so Chief Kline was called. He was scored by the judge for the action of the police department in dismissing cases out of court.

Following the action of Judge Gilmer Friday, the police automobile was sent to Carrier's home. Carrier was not there. Word was left for him to go to police headquarters.

TWO CASES ARE TRIED IN COURT SATURDAY

His case was set for a hearing Tuesday and C. B. Dille, found in the saloon at the time of Carroll's arrest, was held under $100 bonds for his appearance as a witness in the trial. Carroll's bond was also placed at $100.

Andrew and John Koszanowski, and Antoni Baczinski were fined $1 and costs on a charge of assault and battery. Peter Nowaka, arrested along with them several days ago, was found not guilty. It was a case of throwing a beer bottle through a window. They were arrested twice, once when the offense was committed and again when the city court would not accept Atty. John Buszowski on their bond.
